Waveland seeks to edge society from commission

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County Humane Society President Thyla Rogers said she is opposed to a proposal that would take the Hancock County Humane Society representatives off the Hancock County Animal Commission.

Commissioner Mike Benvenuti said he would also be opposed to any move to take the three Humane Society representatives off the commission.

The number is already to be reduced to two through attrition in a commission-approved move to decrease the number of commission members from 15 to 11.

The proposal was one of the items discussed by the Waveland Board of Aldermen at their meeting Tuesday night.

"I think the humane society is vital to the animal commission. I'm kind of upset the board of aldermen would do something like this," Benvenuti said.

"I think the Humane Society is a very vital part of the commission."

The commissioners are appointed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the Waveland Board of Aldermen and the Bay St. Louis City Council to oversee the spending of the public funds used to operate the animal shelter on Gulfside Drive in Waveland.

The Humane Society is a volunteer organization. It does hold fundraisers and donates the money it raises to the shelter and other animal-related programs, having contributed about $13,000 to the shelter since it was built in 1983. In addition, Humane Society volunteers served as the original staff of the shelter, but have since been replaced by employees hired through the commission.

Rogers, who will run for president of the commission in October, advocates reforms at the shelter and has been able to implement some of them by volunteering for several hours nearly every day since February.

Speaking only as an individual and not for the society, Rogers said she feels she would be a better commission chairman because she is the only commission member regularly working in the shelter and knows what is needed there.

Changes Rogers said she has already had a part in accomplishing include baths for the animals, outside walks for dogs, blankets in the cages and Sunday adoption hours.

Rogers added that there has been a long-standing rift between the commission and the society.

"They have tried to keep the society out of there. It is just by my being on the commission through the society that I am allowed in the shelter now," she said.

"I am the only society member allowed in the shelter," she added, stating that she had to obtain the permission of the majority of commissioners to work there.

She added that nobody from the society, to her knowledge, was informed that the aldermen would be discussing the commission at Tuesday's meeting, or of the proposed resolution.

Rogers feels the rest of the society members "will be positively opposed" to the elimination of their representation on the commission.

She explained that the society had recently been trying to make its members more aware of the commission and its functions and that society members have been attending the commission meetings, which are conducted at 7 p.m. the last Wednesday of each month at Waveland Fire Station No. 2 on Gulfside Drive.

City Clerk Arcelyn Dastugue said the proposal has not become official and has been turned over to Board Attorney Lucien Gex, who will draft a resolution.

Gex was one of the attorneys in a civil trial in Hancock County Circuit Court Wednesday and could not be reached for comment regarding the details of the ordinance.

Mayor John Longo Jr. was also not available for comment on Wednesday afternoon.

Shuttle test time breaks record

The Space Shuttle test program at the Stennis Space Center broke a 10-year record for amount of main engine run time during June.

There were 14 tests totaling 8,320 seconds, equivalent to approximately two hours and 19 minutes.

The previous highest test time during one month was 5,854 seconds, compiled in September 1978.

The main engine test program at the Stennis Center has been under way since June 1975.

NASA officials say the recent activation of a third test position, plus pre-launch test requirements were factors in accumulating the record-setting test time over a period of one month.

Other program milestones achieved at the Stennis Center during June included the longest test ever conducted and the successful completion of the flight acceptance series on one of the main engines for the STS-27 mission.

During the month, there were six tests run on engine 2206 in the newly-activated B-1 position, five firings on engine 0211 in the A-1 test stand and three tests on engine 2029 in A-2.

Engine 2029 will be one of three main engines to power the orbiter Atlantis on STS-27.

The firings ranged in duration from 1.5 seconds to 1,040 seconds, which is the longest time a shuttle main engine has ever been fired. The previous record was 1,000 seconds. Engineers conducted three 1,040-second firings during the month of June.

County fair association voluntarily disbands

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Fair and Livestock Association has disbanded, but the board of supervisors has not yet determined who will handle the affairs of the Hancock County Fairgrounds.

Board President and Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas said the board had asked the association members if they would like to form a commission specifically to manage the fairgrounds.

According to Cuevas, fairgrounds association members and officers are volunteers. Members of commissions are appointed and can be paid for their services.

Association President Walter Turcotte submitted a letter to the board Tuesday. The letter stated, "After much debate, the Hancock County Fair and Livestock Association has decided to relinquish control of the county fairgrounds and facilities to the county board of supervisors."

"Considering the amount of county funds invested in the facilities, it is thought that a full-time agency should have control."

As you know, the fair association is a volunteer organization. Having limited time to utilize these facilities to its fullest potential, we feel that it would be unfair to the people of the community to continue as the controlling entity."

"The fair association thanks the present and past board members for the support it has

Pearlington boy dies following weekend mishap

BY D.C. HARVILL
 A Pearlinton boy, involved in a mishap at a popular, swimming spot, died Tuesday morning at Oschner's Clinic in New Orleans.

Christopher Alexander, 5, under the supervision of his uncle, O'Neal Fulton of Bay St. Louis, was swimming, along with other children, in the "Blue Hole," a pond in the Stennis Space Center buffer zone dug for fill dirt during the construction of Interstate 10.

Apparently, while Fulton was distracted by several children whom he had to discipline, Alexander disappeared from view and after a search of two to three minutes was found at the bottom of the pond, according to Sheriff's Deputies Ray Billeau and Bill Pepperman.

Fulton administered CPR at the scene but the boy was unresponsive, according to the report filed by the deputies.

The child was then taken to Hancock Medical Center where he was termed "brain-dead" following treatment in the emergency room.

At that time, according to sheriff's personnel Alexander was taken by helicopter to Oscher's where he was kept on a life support system until he died Tuesday morning at 9:22.

Pass man dies in accident

A Pass Christian man died in an automobile accident in Long Beach the night of Friday July 1st.

Larry Neal Pavolini, 38, was travelling west-bound on Highway 90 at Troutman Drive when, apparently, he lost control of his car, hitting a large oak tree in the median, according to Long Beach policeman Alfred Reyer.

Pavolini was pronounced dead at the scene of the 11 p.m. accident.

The cause of the accident is undetermined at this time, Reyer said.

Correction

The obituary for Ferdinand Ladner in Sunday's Echo erroneously stated that he was a member of St. Matthews Catholic Church. Mr. Ladner was a member of Liberty House of Prayer Church.

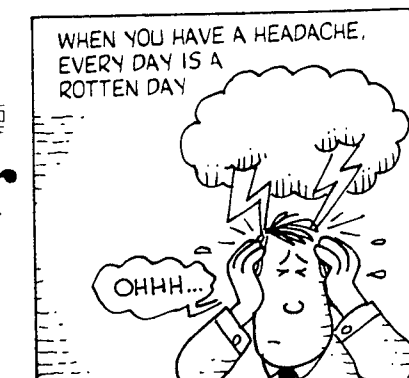

Consumer Update

By Janet K. Lukens
Area Consumer Management Specialist

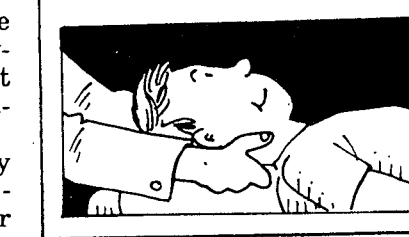

At some point, even the best "shade tree mechanic" feels the need to use the services of a professional for auto repair.

According to the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs, the following guidelines will help you get the most for your car maintenance dollar:

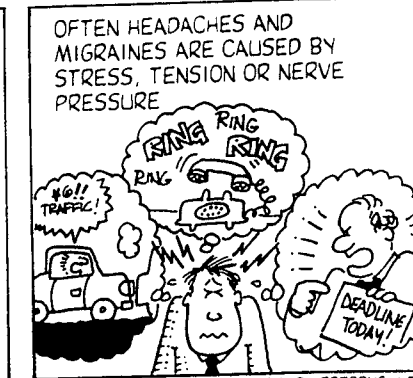

1. Before having a company repair your car, check the company's record with your state or local consumer protection office of local Better Business Bureau.
2. Be specific about what you want done or the problems you are experiencing.
3. Ask for either a written estimate or that you be called before any major repair work is done. Be sure it's understood that your permission must be obtained before the mechanic does work beyond that which you originally requested.
4. Before you leave the car, make sure the work order reflects what you want done.
5. If additional work is done without your permission, you don't have to pay for the unauthorized work, and you have the right to have your bill adjusted.
6. Ask to inspect and/or keep all replaced parts.
7. Keep copies of all work orders and receipts and get all warranties in writing.

Drought disproves myth of endless water supply

A seemingly endless supply of water have given many Mississippians little reason to think about saving it.

The continuing drought this summer has changed that kind of thinking. Mississippians in many parts of the state are seeing their water supplies dwindle because of the drought, and some counties are restricting water use.

Homeowners can easily save water without making major changes in their routines. They can cut their use of water by 20 percent, and they don't have to spend money to do it.

"Most of us have never faced an extended and severe water shortage," said Jim Thomas, an agricultural engineer with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "It is easy to take water for granted."

The key to saving water is eliminating waste. Running faucets, unnecessary toilet flushes and lengthy showers waste water. Throwing out water that can be reused is also waste. Ignoring leaky pipes contributes to the problem.

"A faucet leaking only one drop per second may waste as much as 2,000 gallons of water a year," Thomas said.

Water-saving equipment, such as faucet aerators, flow control devices and special shower heads, can save water. Two faucet aerators, a shower control device and two quart water bottles for a toilet tank cuts water usage by 13 percent for a family of four. The cost for these devices is $10 or less.

Homeowners can take other steps to cut their water usage. The following is a short list:

*Reuse water from child wading pools to water lawn, garden and shrubs.

*Prevent children from playing with water.

*Sweep walks and driveways with a broom rather than washing with a hose.

*Hold showers to 5 minutes each. Shut off shower while soaping or lathering shampoo.

*Don't let faucet run while brushing teeth.

*Use disposable baby diapers instead of rinsing reusable cloth diapers in the toilet and have to flush.

*Don't use running water to thaw frozen food.

*Water lawn in early morning hours when there is less heat and wind.

*Remove weeds and other water competitors from gardens and flower beds.

*Check pipes and toilets for leaks.

*Use pistol-grip nozzles for positive shut-off garden hoses. Turn water off at faucet if it won't be immediately used.

*Wash only full loads in dishwasher or clotheswasher if water levels cannot be varied.

Six arrested in Bay St. Louis following Fourth disturbance

Six people were arrested in Bay St. Louis on the Fourth of July following an incident involving fireworks.

Bay Police Chief Ray Murphy originated a complaint that a group of people on the beach at the corner of Washington Street were placing fireworks in bottles and throwing them into the air.

When officers asked the group to disperse, a bottle was thrown at an officer who received minor injuries, and a 14 year-old boy was knocked to the ground and stomped according to Murphy.

The following were arrested and released under bond following the incident:

Zachary Alveris, 21, 705 Charbonet St., New Orleans, La., charged with public drunkenness, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Bond was $1,100.

Brend Damon, 30, 2500 Walker Lane, New Orleans, La., charged with public drunkenness, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Bond was $1,100.

Joe Cargo, 51, 705 Charbonet St., New Orleans, La., charged with public drunkenness, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assault on a police officer. Bond was $6,100.

Ronald Elzy, 18, apt. 28, Sycamore St., Bay St. Louis, charged with simple assault and unlawful discharge of fireworks. Bond was $600.

Two Bay St. Louis juveniles were arrested on charges of violation of fireworks ordinances, simple assault, public profanity and disorderly conduct. They were released into the custody of their parents until they can go before the Hancock County Youth Court.

MISSISSIPPI MEDICAL WEIGHT LOSS CENTERS ARE CELEBRATING THE GRAND OPENING OF THEIR BAY ST. LOUIS CENTER

AT 827-B HIGHWAY 90, NEXT TO HANCOCK MEDICAL CENTER

MISSISSIPPI MEDICAL WEIGHT LOSS CENTERS have been in operation since July 1986, helping Mississippians to lose weight the FAST and SAFE way. MISSISSIPPI MEDICAL WEIGHT LOSS CENTERS are proud to announce their newest location in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

MISSISSIPPI MEDICAL WEIGHT LOSS CENTERS have a staff of trained doctors, nurses and counselors who are always supporting, encouraging and motivating their patients the entire time of their weight loss programs. Most people's weight problems are related to their eating habits due to poor nutritional knowledge, stress, moods and low self-esteem. We at MISSISSIPPI MEDICAL WEIGHT LOSS CENTERS realize this and we can help you to lose that weight and teach you new eating habits to keep that weight off once you have lost it. Being overweight is NOT just an image problem; it is very much a health problem. Fat doesn't just store on your waist, abdomen, hips and thighs; it also stores around your internal organs—especially, your HEART.

Don't wait until you become hypertensive or have a heart attack to realize the importance of losing weight for your HEALTH AND LIFE. We have numerous patients that have High Blood Pressure, High Cholesterol and High Triglyceride levels upon enrolling in our weight loss programs; however, in just a few weeks on our diets, those levels go down to normal range.

Quotables by CUEVAS

It was sure hot over the July Fourth weekend until the very welcomed showers cooled things off a bit. Everyone appeared to have had a good time taking advantage of the many festivities.

One event that seems to be getting better each year is the Garden Island Community Association's Boat Parade.

The judges had a hard time in deciding the winners this year because so many could have placed in the top standings.

The small community's residents put a lot of effort in making it a very festive day after the parade with an old fashioned picnic.

Congratulations to the residents of Garden Island for a great boat parade.

A drive is underway in Hancock County to purchase High Pressure Filling Station equipment for the county's fire fighters.

In Hancock County there are 14 fire departments with the majority being volunteers.

The needed equipment is used to fill the air bottles used by firefighters and now have to be sent out of town to be re-filled and is very expensive.

Volunteer firefighters devote a lot of time and energy in helping protect our county's citizens.

Jay Marsh, Hancock County fire marshal is pushing for the purchase of this equipment, as he feels it is much needed, as a fire fighter needs to use breathing equipment at most fires.

The air tanks are used to protect firefighters from hazardous materials, and they appear in the majority of fires.

Persons interested in making a tax free donation can mail it to; Hancock County Fire Marshal, 129 Court Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

Remember, the donation is tax deductible, Marsh says.

JOB OPENINGS

There is reason to celebrate these days. Unemployment is still dropping in Mississippi; the unemployment rate has dropped to its lowest level in eight years. But why?

For starters, businesses are relocating—moving to Mississippi. American Fabrics recently opened a plant in Picayune that will employ more than 100 people. And they say that's just the beginning.

Second, existing plants are expanding. The Dupont Company recently announced that it will nearly double its operation in Pass Christian. That expansion will create about 600 temporary construction-related jobs and 50 to 60 new permanent positions.

So why are some people in Washington talking about plant closings? Instead, I believe, we should be talking about ways to make it easier for existing plants to expand and additional plants to open.

The real questions are how do we keep creating new jobs, investing to open new plants, and making sure that workers find the jobs we help create?

The Plant-Opening and Jobs Creation Act of 1988 is a good place to start.

The first part of our 'plant-opening bill' contains tax incentives for new jobs, new investment, and new training. It would repeal the 1990 payroll tax increase on employers and employees, which will otherwise raise the cost of hiring and working. That tax is now unnecessary because of the mushrooming Social Security trust fund surplus.

It would eliminate the temporary federal unemployment insurance tax that took effect this year, which is also counterproductive and unnecessary. It would cut the capital gains tax rate to a minimum of 15 percent. This will encourage new investment. And it will also provide tax-free treatment of educational assistance to workers to encourage new education and training.

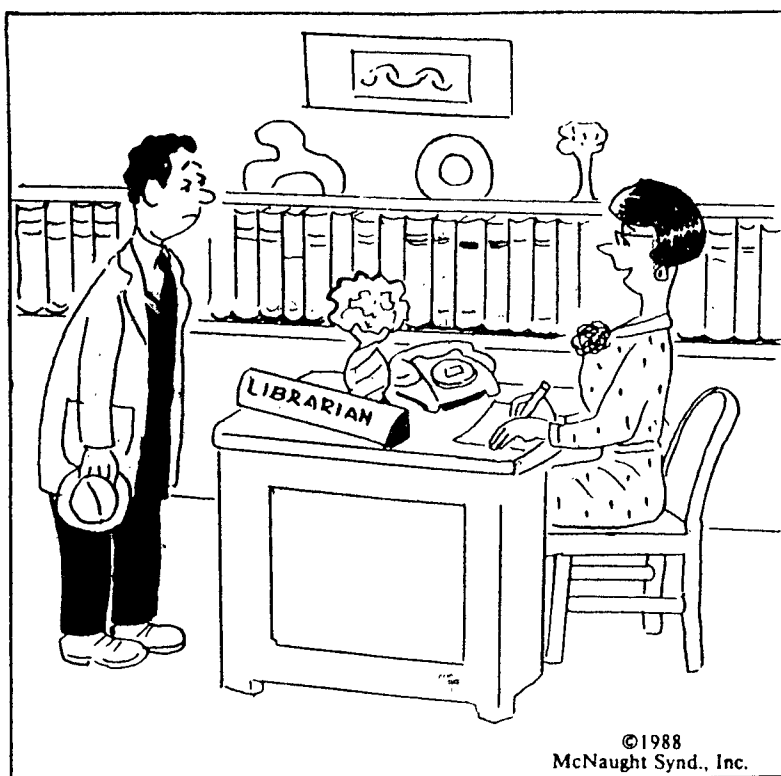

The second part of our bill would focus tax incentives in the hardest-hit urban and rural areas—creating tax incentives for hiring, working and investing in enterprise zones.

And finally, our bill will provide alternatives to protectionism, with an approach aimed at opening, not closing trade markets around the world.

The glass is half-full, not half-empty. Plant-opening is the real issue, not plant-closing.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Agenda for the 90's

By Ronald Reagan

On the 4th of July weekend Americans raised Old Glory a little higher, cheered fireworks, and remembered the blessing we share as citizens of this great and free land. But every year, as we celebrate our independence and pause to give thanks for our liberty, we should also remember that the freedoms we cherish are never more than a generation away from extinction. It is up to each of us to preserve, protect, and defend America's precious heritage.

Some Americans have done just that on the battlefield. But all of us can do it each and every day. We can vote at election time. We can volunteer to help political campaigns for the candidates of our choice, as well as volunteer for work that is needed around our community. And we can simply raise our children well, do our jobs well, and live in God's light.

One man who has contributed more than his share to our country recently left government service. For a year-and-a-half Howard Baker was my Chief of Staff here at the White House. He served with great distinction, helping me guide important legislation through Congress, as well as helping me at the summits with Mr. Gorbachev in Washington and Moscow. Serving with distinction is nothing new for Howard Baker. He did it for almost two decades in the United States Senate, the last four years as majority leader. I know I will miss him around the White House.

In the months ahead I will be helped by a new Chief of Staff, Kenneth Duberstein. It will not be a big change for Ken. He is moving from his old office, where he has worked as the number two man on my staff and as Howard's partner since early last year, to the one next door. That is good, because we have a lot of work to do and a big agenda.

On July 1, with Members of Congress looking on, I signed the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act into law. At the ceremony I noted that almost a year-and-a-half ago I had said that we should remove a financial specter facing our older Americans: the fear of an illness requiring acute care so expensive that it can result in having to choose between bankruptcy and death.

Shortly after that, our Administration submitted a bill to Congress to help free the elderly from the fear of catastrophic illness. Now a version of that bill is law. As I said on July 1, we still must face challenges if this law, as Congress finally enacted it, is to work. But we can all be grateful that a burden has been lifted from the shoulders and minds of the elderly all over America.

As I signed the Catastrophic Coverage Act into law, I could not help thinking how much we Americans have done in the last few years. Today our economy is strong and growing. Our belief in peace through strength, which we kept despite many protests in Congress and elsewhere, is paying off. The first treaty ever to eliminate an entire class of U.S. and Soviet nuclear missiles has been signed. And there is, all the way around, a new realism in our relations with the Soviet bloc.

But despite these accomplishments, I believe our eyes should be on the future and the accomplishments we have still to achieve. For example, Congressional approval of the Free Trade Agreement that we negotiated with Canada will help the entire North American economy grow and create vast numbers of new jobs well into the next century.

Throughout our history, whenever trade barriers have been lowered in North America, we have had a blooming of economic growth. We owe it to our children to cultivate for another time of flowering and approve this agreement.

We also owe it to our children to put the illegal drug trade out of business. That is why, when I visited Toronto recently for the Economic Summit of the major industrial nations, I was particularly pleased by one action the summit nations took.

It is called the Bush Initiative. For it, thank Vice President Bush and Canada's Prime Minister Brian Mulroney. Not long ago, these two leaders decided that the best new place to hit the drug trade was in its most vulnerable spot—money laundering. Now that is what all of major industrial nations are going to do.

Yes, our nation's agenda is full—whether it is keeping our defenses strong or cutting unnecessary spending; getting Congress to pass a welfare reform bill that requires work, and trade legislation that will open, not close, markets or helping freedom fighters around the world.

But that is what democracy is all about—a big agenda. America's agenda, for all of us to work on together, to build a bright tomorrow for our blessed land.

Here at the White House, our sleeves are rolled up and we are hard at work on our agenda for the future.

Holiday traffic fatalities held to six-year low

Highway Patrol officials say enforcement efforts, public awareness and the high visibility of law enforcement officers over the Fourth of July weekend resulted in the lowest number of people killed in motor vehicle crashes on state and federal highways in six years.

"Not since the Fourth of July weekend in 1983 have we only had one person to die on highways under the patrol's jurisdiction," said Col. David R. Huggins, chief of the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

"We would have liked for the number to have been zero highway deaths and that's what we will be aiming toward next year," he said.

Huggins said the patrol's entire sworn force was working during the 78-hour holiday.

"Much of the credit for the low fatality rate must be given to the men and women who sacrificed their holiday to work," Huggins said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If it concerns you, it concerns us

In defense of dogs

July 1, 1988
Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Editor:

Having cared for pet dogs for a period approximating a half century, I feel close enough to dogs to be upset by a letter to you which advocated 'dethroning Dogdom' and giving the county back to the people.

Many, particularly those who love cats and hate dogs, are prone to indict all dogs because of the comparatively small percentage of these animals who have become strays...usually because of people neglect.

There are laws on books to have these unfortunate animals picked up and put out of their misery...and rightfully so.

I am sure that the many unpaid workers of the Humane Society are doing everything in their power to solve the stray dog problem.

But let's not hasten to condemn those loving and loyal dogs who are kind and faithful to so many and who are loved by children and who do so much to make the loneliness of old folks more bearable.

Furthermore, many dogs are easily trained for useful chores.

As an instance, there are dogs who happily entertain countless numbers of people by acting in side shows and circuses.

And there are dogs who take great pride in rounding up larger animals, such as cattle and sheep.

Dogs are the earliest animals to be used in transport and are still used for that purpose throughout the Arctic and in parts of the Old World.

Lastly, before we 'dethrone Dogdom,' let us also consider the vast number of dogs who have become the 'eyes' for the blind. Many sightless people would be denied the pleasure of moving about freely were it not for the 'seeing eye' dogs who love and are loved by them...truly their best friends!

Sincerely,
Stanleigh A. Morrison

Animals 'abandoned' at gate cause serious problems

People who leave boxes or other containers with animals outside the gates of the Hancock County Animal Shelter while we are closed must not realize such practices are against the law.

This is called 'abandonment.' It's just like dropping them off in the middle of nowhere.

A few months ago someone left a box which was supposed to have kittens in it but didn't. I looked all around to find them but couldn't.

Later on while cleaning the outside dog runs someone found these kittens. The dogs which were in the run had killed these helpless animals.

It's not fun finding more dead animals here at the shelter—enough of them are put to sleep because people don't want them.

Another person had tied two dogs to our front gate. These dogs were in the rain and unfriendly to everyone.

Ed Abson, the Waveland warden, had to come in to take these animals off the gate so I could open up for business.

A kitten was put at our gate just the other day and also got to our outside runs, but thank God the dogs liked cats. The kitten was very skinny with maggots all over and slowly dying.

So, people, please don't leave us any animals at our gates. Our hours are Tuesday through Friday, 9:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., Saturday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Thank you,
Lisa A. Hall

A CELEBRATION OF BUSINESS AND THE NATION

For 212 years, the United States has grown and prospered, and sharing in that growth and prosperity has been American business.

America struggled through youth as an agrarian society only to mature into one of the world's leading industrialized nations.

Holding similar values and principles, the United States and the business community that developed within enjoyed a relationship proving beneficial to both. One thing is certain—one could not exist without the other.

The ideas and beliefs that built this nation are the same ideas responsible for our country's commercial success—the belief in the individual and the hope that every man is entitled to the best possible life he can make for himself.

We should be very thankful that we live in a country that offers so many benefits and opportunities to so many people, for nowhere else in the world are there similar prospects. The country can only continue to prosper because its citizens are only confined by their own limits.

IN A BLINDING DOWNPOUR Tuesday afternoon a car driven by Ed McCraney of New Orleans skidded out of control on Interstate 10 and, after narrowly missing a highway sign, ran off the road into trees. McCraney said he and his wife, Elaine, were returning home from Destin, Florida, when the accident occurred, just west of the Jourdan River Bridge. "When we were going down the hill all I could think was, 'Thank God they are small trees,'" McCraney said. The couple was visibly shaken but physically unhurt, which McCraney accredited to their having been wearing seat belts. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

BAYSIDE PARK VOLUNTEER FIREFIGHTERS finish taking part of the roof off a Shoreline Park home struck by lightning during a storm Tuesday afternoon. Assistant Chief Albinus Zoerner said the lightning started a small fire in the attic of the Dogwood Street house but firefighters were able to stop the blaze before it spread through any more of the structure. Judy Godsey, whose father Steven Hicks owns the residence, said she heard a loud boom and at first thought a tree in the yard had been struck, then smelled smoke. Going outside in the pouring rain, Godsey spotted the smoke coming from the roof and alerted the fire department, which sent two trucks and two private vehicles with a total of 10 volunteers. The hole created by firefighters peeling the tin from the roof was covered with a tarp provided by Godsey. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Touart enters commissioners race

George Touart of Pascagoula has entered the race for Southern District Highway Commissioner's post.

Touart, 39, a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi with a degree in Commercial and Regional Planning, is currently a member of the Pascagoula City Council.

He has been a member of the Pascagoula Planning Commission, a purchasing agent for F.B. Walker and Sons, a senior buyer for Ingalls Shipbuilding, vice-president of Fabricators, Inc.; Co-owner and founder of Champion Industrial Fabricators and marketing director at L.M.H., Inc.

Touart is a member of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Transportation Committee, a past president of the U.S.M. Alumni Association and Big Gold Club, and a charter member of the Kriex of Asgard.

He is also a member of the Pascagoula Rotary Club, Moss Point Young Men's Business Club, and First United Methodist Church.

"It is time for the Highway Commissioner's office to be run as a business," Touart said.

"Though my campaign is based in Pascagoula, I am running for all the people of the Southern District.

"The people now have an opportunity, for the first time, to elect a commissioner from the Coast who is qualified," he explained.

Touart lives in Pascagoula with his two sons, Matthew and Jacob.

Word Wise

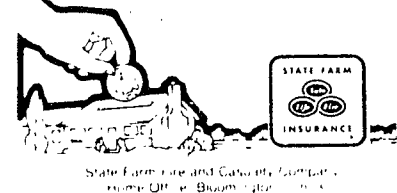

Q. My pet peeve is hearing people say "irregardless." It seems as if everyone makes this mistake. Would you please tell your readers why it is wrong. — C.N., Richfield, MN

A. The correct word to use is regardless. Irregardless is not even a word. It is a double negative, but people make the error because they fail to see the negative in the less. There is a desire to add the prefix ir- probably because of such words as irregular and irresponsible.

Lamar County organic growers supplying area's urban markets

Editor's Note: The following article is financially assisted by the National Endowment for the Humanities through a grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and don't necessarily represent the views of these organizations. Carol Cox is a woodworker and poet who lives just north of Jackson.

BY CAROL COX

As Americans become more concerned about what they eat, two couples who farm in Mississippi are helping to meet the demands both for organically-grown (pesticide- and herbicide-free) produce and for unusual vegetables and fresh herbs.

Tom and Sue Dana have lived for 11 years on 40 acres near Lumberton in southeast Mississippi where they garden professionally for markets in the Deep South.

They are the main suppliers of fresh produce to the Rainbow Whole Foods Co-op in Jackson, and they sell vegetables to stores in the New Orleans area.

In addition to the more familiar crops such as corn, tomatoes, and beans, the Danas grow several varieties of lettuce and the golden, red, and deep purple peppers which are finding such current favor in the kitchens of up-scale cooks.

All of the plants are grown without the use of poisons.

Tom, who grew up in Mississippi, has a PhD in oceanography and was working as a research scientist in southern California when he developed an ulcer from the stress of living and working there.

When a doctor prescribed health foods for his condition, he began to take a greater interest in what he ate and decided to grow his own vegetables so that they would be as clean as possible.

He discovered that he could sell everything he and Sue couldn't eat.

As their attentions turned more in that direction, the Danas decided that they needed to buy their own land.

This meant leaving southern California, which they found to be an expensive and polluted environment.

Unable to find a research job in Mississippi, Tom hired on as an oil worker in Louisiana.

His brother helped make payments on the farm until, after three years, the produce business had come far enough along to allow him to quit the offshore work.

The Danas have about five acres under cultivation—14 plots, each between one-fourth and one-half acre. They also have fruit trees and muscadines.

Tom says that heavy cultivating is done with a tractor, but the two do spend a lot of time on their knees using hand-tools.

"We try to emphasize alternative technology," he says. "We don't like to burn diesel. And I'm not mechanic or welder enough to handle big expensive equipment breakdowns, so we skip that inconvenience and expense by working simply."

Tom and Sue deal with problems such as uncertain or extreme weather conditions and persistent insects in alternative ways, too.

They have paid close attention to the varieties of different vegetables and have learned which ones are tolerant of various weather conditions and are most resistant to insects.

They try to create as healthy a soil environment as possible so that the plants will be strong and therefore insect resistant. They also hand-pick insects off the plants as much as possible.

"In this area, in this climate," Tom says, "there isn't time to get bored. Things change so fast you can't keep up. In farming timing is everything. If you fail to pick at the right time, you lose the crop and the income you expected from it, and the plants stop bearing, so you lose the rest of the crop, too."

"It's different every week. In California, you manipulate a relatively benign environment that is stable all the time, although you do have to bring water to it. Here, climate, weather, disease epidemics, insects, wildlife, it's all unpredictable."

But the Danas find the hard work satisfying. Sue says, "Delivering bright, clean food to people when they're happy to receive it is a very good feeling. I'm gardening now because I have a good time at it."

Garlic Farmer Prospers

The farm where Ed and Mindy Nichols live, several miles west of Canton, has been in Ed's family since the 1830's. 'Ed returned to his native state in 1973 after living in Kenya and England. "England would inspire anyone to garden," he points out.

"The whole island is manicured. It made me want to do something, but land is just not available there. The Queen owns half of the country, so scarcity drives up the price to where a farm could never pay for itself. And I realized I had access to this place."

He began to make the place his own by converting the old smokehouse into living quarters.

A story and photographs about that project appeared in Fine Homebuilding magazine.

For the first three years he worked for a neighbor learning Mississippi farming the practical way and developing a network of contacts to old agricultural techniques which have stayed helpful over the years.

"When I moved here there were little farms all over the countryside," Ed says. "They're mostly gone. I have lasted because I had a vision of keeping my independence from the town."

In 1978, he married Mindy, a native Oregonian who works as a nurse in several county health department clinics. They have spent much time gardening since then.

Like the Danas, they use no poisons on their crops.

Ed had grown accustomed to eating organically-grown vegetables when he lived abroad, and adopting that process seemed the natural course for him to follow on his own land.

While growing a wide variety of vegetables for themselves, the Nichols' primary crop for the marketplace are elephant garlic and herbs.

"I was originally trying to grow everything for the market, but I was spread way too thin," says Ed. "I just couldn't do it all. Fortunately the garlic business just kind of took off on its own."

Elephant garlic is a variety with especially large and mild-tasting cloves, so it is easily handled in the kitchen. The Nicholises had grown it for their own use for several years when their friends Charlie and Ann Hyneman, who had just bought Walker's Restaurant in Jackson, asked them to grow enough for the restaurant to use.

"By then," Ed says, "I had found out where to order seed stock, so I put out seven or eight hundred plants. Then a feature ran on METV's 'Farmweek' and mail orders started coming in."

Now there are 20,000 plants on three-fourths of an acre. It's about the limit of the Nichols capability.

Most of the farm is old cotton land and just doesn't have the soil fertility it needs," Ed points out, "so we're limited in how much land is available. And garlic is very labor intensive. We can disc and row with the tractor, but after that it's all by hand: plant, weed, harvest, dry and braid. We get very tired at harvest time."

The Nicholises also have a beautiful herb garden which is itself reminiscent of English plantings. This enables them to send a steady supply of fresh-cut herbs such as oregano, thyme, sage, and chives to restaurants in Jackson and to make large deliveries of basil for pesto-making demonstrations at specialty food stores.

In the spring they sell potted herb sets they have started from seed.

In an era of mega-farming, in which huge tracts of land are worked by massive machinery and maintained with soil-depleting chemicals, with the resulting crops having been repeatedly sprayed with poisons about which more and more questions of safety are being raised, these two couples have made successes of their small family farms, where the harvesting of delicious and health-producing food is the main concern.

BALLOONS! BALLOONS! BALLOONS!—The Hancock County Library System's 1988 Summer Library Program lifted off with a balloon release at all three libraries last week. This year's theme is 'Unlock The Mystery.' Taking part in the Waveland Library's balloon release are, from left, Troy Thigpen, Matthew Manix and Troy Schwartz. The program will continue for the next five weeks at all three libraries with final activity being presentation of awards for completion of the program.

The board recently created a Hancock County Recreation Department. During the initial discussion stage, there was a proposal that the fairgrounds be operated through a cooperative effort of the association and the recreation department.

Cuevas did not indicate when a decision on how to operate the facility without the association might be reached.

Cooking up a Storm

By Katy McGuire Caire
Ice cream has come a long, long way since those days in ancient Rome, when Nero slaves ran high up into the mountains, to fill their bowls with snow and hasten down the mountains to the Emperor's palace, where the frozen treat of snow, fruit, wine and honey delighted the royal taste buds.

And, so history tells us, the Emperor threatened instant death to any slave runner who didn't make it back to the palace before the snow in his bowl melted!

I don't know who actually invented ice cream, but I'm very grateful for the discovery, aren't you?

History does tell us that Marco Polo, in 1295, tasted ice cream during his travels from his native Italy to the Far East returning home to Venice with tales of the marvelous milk sherbert he had enjoyed in China, and so on. Soon, the Italians were making their own version, and ice cream traveled throughout Europe.

When the English colonists came to America, they brought their treasured 'receipts' with them, to enjoy this treat. They found their ice sources in frozen rivers and streams high in the mountains, then mixed cream and fruit in a pot, beating the cream by hand and shaking the mixture up and down in another pot of salt and ice.

With the coming of the ice house for storage, then the advent of the hand-cranked ice cream freezer, it was no longer necessary to beat it all up with a wooden spoon—you simply turned the crank.

And, even today, some claim that the hand-cranked ice cream maker is the only way to make really good ice cream!

With advancements, such as the electrical refrigerator, and the machines, ice-cream making became simpler and more widespread, and also quite a thriving commercial enterprise.

Millions of gallons are consumed in the United States each year, and it is estimated by the experts on such matters that Americans consume more scoops per capita than any other country.

Vanilla is still the favorite across the county, it's said, though other flavors have their devotees as well.

Fresh peach is one of my favorites, so today I'm stirring up:

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM

(Lazy-Lazy Way)
2 cups peach pulp
1/2 cup sugar
Juice of a lemon
Pinch of salt
1/2 pt. whipping cream
2 eggs, separated
2 Tbsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. vanilla

After you've mashed ripe, quite soft peaches into a pulp, add the sugar and lemon juice, pour into a freezer tray, and freeze for 45 minutes to an hour. Beat the egg whites stiff, adding the sugar and fold into the beaten yolks.

Whip the cream to the consistency of thick custard, and combine with the egg mixture. Add the vanilla and the frozen peach pulp, mixing together lightly.

"It's easy to stay within our budget if we don't buy anything."

Return to the freezer till firm and ready.

Ocean Springs physician takes oath as wildlife commissioner

Ocean Springs physician Dr. Henry Hillman was sworn in as Mississippi's newest Wildlife Conservation Commissioner in a ceremony at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Biloxi office of the state Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Hillman, 36, who retired from private practice earlier this year, was named to the post by Governor Ray Mabus June 29. The appointment was effective July 1.

Hillman replaces former commissioner Joseph Gex of Bay St. Louis, whose five-year term expired June 30.

Hillman, the first wildlife commissioner to take the oath on the Gulf Coast, said he looks forward to his term on the commission.

"I'm delighted at the confidence the governor has bestowed on me in making this appointment," Hillman said. "I will do my best to insure the wildlife and fisheries in the entire state and especially in South Mississippi."

As a big-game hunter, Hillman said that he is interested in the conservation of wildlife and marine life in Mississippi.

"I'm devoted to conserving our resources," Hillman said, "so that people in the future can continue to enjoy wildlife. I intend to listen to the advice of our biologists and our game wardens and to develop some sound wildlife policies."

Wildlife commissioners are appointed by congressional districts. Hillman is the commissioner from the 5th District which includes Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Stone, George, Pearl River, Wayne, Lamar, Forrest, Perry, Greene and part of Jones counties.

Hillman has hunted brown bear, moose and caribou in Alaska; elk and mule deer in New Mexico; and deer and small game in Mississippi. He said he hopes to go big-game hunting in Africa.

A native of Richton, Hillman attended Mississippi College where he received a bachelor's degree in biology and chemistry. He graduated from the University of Mississippi Medical School in Jackson in 1977. He practiced family medicine in North Biloxi until February. He is married to the former Kathryn Lopez of Victorville, Calif.

Royals slate Hattiesburg tryouts

HATTIESBURG—The Kansas City Royals will conduct a professional baseball try-out camp Monday, July 11 beginning at 10 a.m. at Morgan Field on the campus of William Carey College in Hattiesburg.

The camp, open to players ages 16-22, will be led by Royals area scout Kenny Gonzales.

Interested athletes must provide their own baseball equipment. Current American Legion players must have written permission from their coach to try-out.

For more information, call Carey Head Baseball Coach Bobby Halford—(601) 582-6110; or visit the Carey campus on Tuscan Avenue in Hattiesburg.

St. Rose tennis results reported

Men's Open Singles Division of the third annual St. Rose Fair Tennis Tournament played on the St. Stanislaus High School tennis courts in Bay St. Louis, was won by Jairo Mareno of Keesler Air Force Base over Don Norris of Gulfport in the finals by a score of 5-7, 6-2, 6-4.

Mareno beat Kevin Smith of Gulfport, Pat Barnes of Pass Christian, and Dennis Walker of Moss Point to gain a shot at the championship.

Norris gained the finals by defeating Ronald James of Jackson, Preston Wall of Jackson, and Kenny Price of Moss Point.

The Open Singles Consolation was won by Tony Hampton of New Orleans, La.

Myron Labat and Dennis Walker took the Open Doubles honors by defeating Elbert Vaughn and James Denson by a score of 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Sports Medicine Center conducts free physicals

The Sports Medicine Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center will be conducting physicals from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, July 16.

All physicals will include blood pressure, eye examination, height and weight screening, medical history profile, musculoskeletal screening, and physician's examination.

Participants are asked to wear shorts and tee shirts for the examination. A copy of polio and tetanus immunization records are also requested.

All physicals will be offered free of charge to area athletes. Participants are asked to schedule appointments before July 15. Appointments may be made by calling 504-649-8651, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Coast Guard asks help in reporting boating accidents

The U.S. Coast Guard is asking recreational boaters for suggestions on how to make it easier for boaters to report non-fatal accidents. Only about 10 percent of non-fatal accidents are now reported, the Coast Guard estimates.

Coast Guard regulations require boaters to report an accident if a person is killed, injured and requires medical treatment beyond first aid, or disappears from a boat under circumstances that indicate death or injury. Reports also are required if damage to the vessel or other property totals more than $200 or the vessel is a complete loss.

The Coast Guard believes that all fatal accidents are being reported, but would like to get boaters' views on why so few non-fatal accidents are reported. It especially wants to know if boaters are familiar with reporting requirements, whether they are being prevented or discouraged from reporting, and what they think should be done to correct such situations.

The reports are important because analysis of accidents can reveal safety problems in terms of boat design or operator error. Also, better accident reporting can help the Coast Guard improve boating standards and guide boating safety education programs.

The Coast Guard also wants boaters' comments on its proposal to raise the reporting threshold to $400. The full text of the proposal is in the April 25 issue of the Federal Register. Free copies can be obtained from the Coast Guard's toll-free boating safety hotline, 800-368-5647.

Mail written comments to Commandant (G-CMC/21)(CG 82-015), U.S. Coast Guard, 2100 Second St., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590-0001. They must be received by July 25, 1988.

KEEPING FIT

Q. I would like to go on a diet, but not in order to lose weight. I just want to be healthy. I'm going to cut out all foods which are unhealthy. Which foods are best for me?

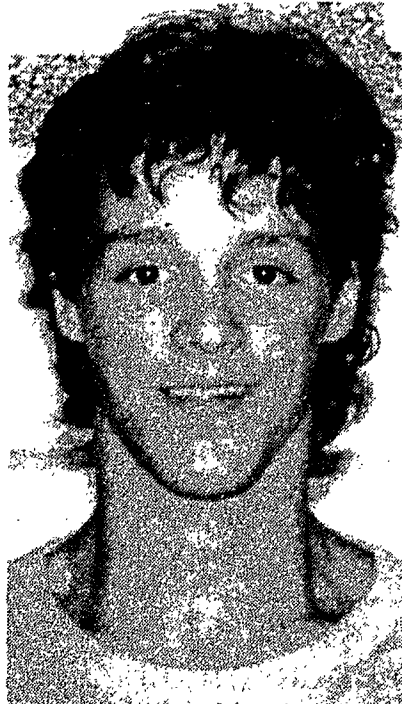

A. Healthy foods: Green, leafy and cabbage family vegetables (with carotene and vitamin C): spinach, kale, chard, collard greens, romaine lettuce, broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and cabbage.

Orange vegetables and fruits (with carotene, a precursor to vitamin A): carrots, pumpkins, squash, sweet potatoes, cantaloupes, peaches and mangoes.

Fruits and vegetables rich in vitamin C: all citrus fruits, green and red peppers, broccoli, brussels sprouts, tomatoes and potatoes.

Fish, dairy and low-fat animal foods (rich in protein and calcium): lean beef, skinless poultry, tuna, scallops, skim or lowfat milk, yogurt and sherbet.

Polyunsaturated oils, corn and safflower oil (vitamin E): includes margarine made with vegetable oil.

GULF VIEW Elementary's Gene Moran was one of 52 players and coaches who took part in Pearl River Community College's summer basketball camp June 13-17 in Poplarville. Moran was named 'Most Valuable Player' in the junior high division.

Pass School District sets bus routes

The Pass Christian Public School District is offering an Extended School Year Program to students who failed to master core skills during the 1987-88 school year.

The program will begin on July 18 from 8 a.m. to noon and will be located in the Pass Christian Elementary School on North Street.

One bus will run from the DeLisle area and one in the city of Pass Christian.

Bus number 17, driven by Mrs. Donna Cuevas, will begin Route number 1 on Ladner Road, run east on Kiln-DeLisle Road, north on Vidalia Road to the Menge Avenue intersection, south on Menge Avenue to Cuevas-DeLisle Road, west on Cuevas-DeLisle Road and south on Wittmann Road to the Elementary School.

Bus number 13, driven by Mrs. Pearl Dedeaux, will begin Route number 2 at the intersection of Vidalia and Cuevas/Kiln-DeLisle Road, run south on Wittmann Road to the intersection of North Street, east on North Street to Menge Avenue, south on Menge Avenue to Second Street, east on Second Street to Cedar Avenue, north on Cedar Avenue to North Street and east on North Street to the Elementary School.

Students may meet the bus at points along these routes which will begin at 7 a.m. There is no charge for the transportation or the program which runs through August 12.

Further information can be obtained by contacting Dr. Lorice Broome, assistant superintendent of education, at 452-7271.

PRC board approves budget

A record $8.2 million unrestricted operating budget was adopted by the Pearl River College Board of Trustees for the 1988-89 academic year during the board's regular June meeting.

According to Ron Holmes, PRC's business manager, the new budget represents an increase of $1,205,310 over the '87-'88 revised operating budget of $7,007,709. The new budget will take effect July 1.

Pearl River's revenue is derived from five sources, including student fees, county, state and federal support and campus sales. In the past, state support has been based on the school's fall enrollment.

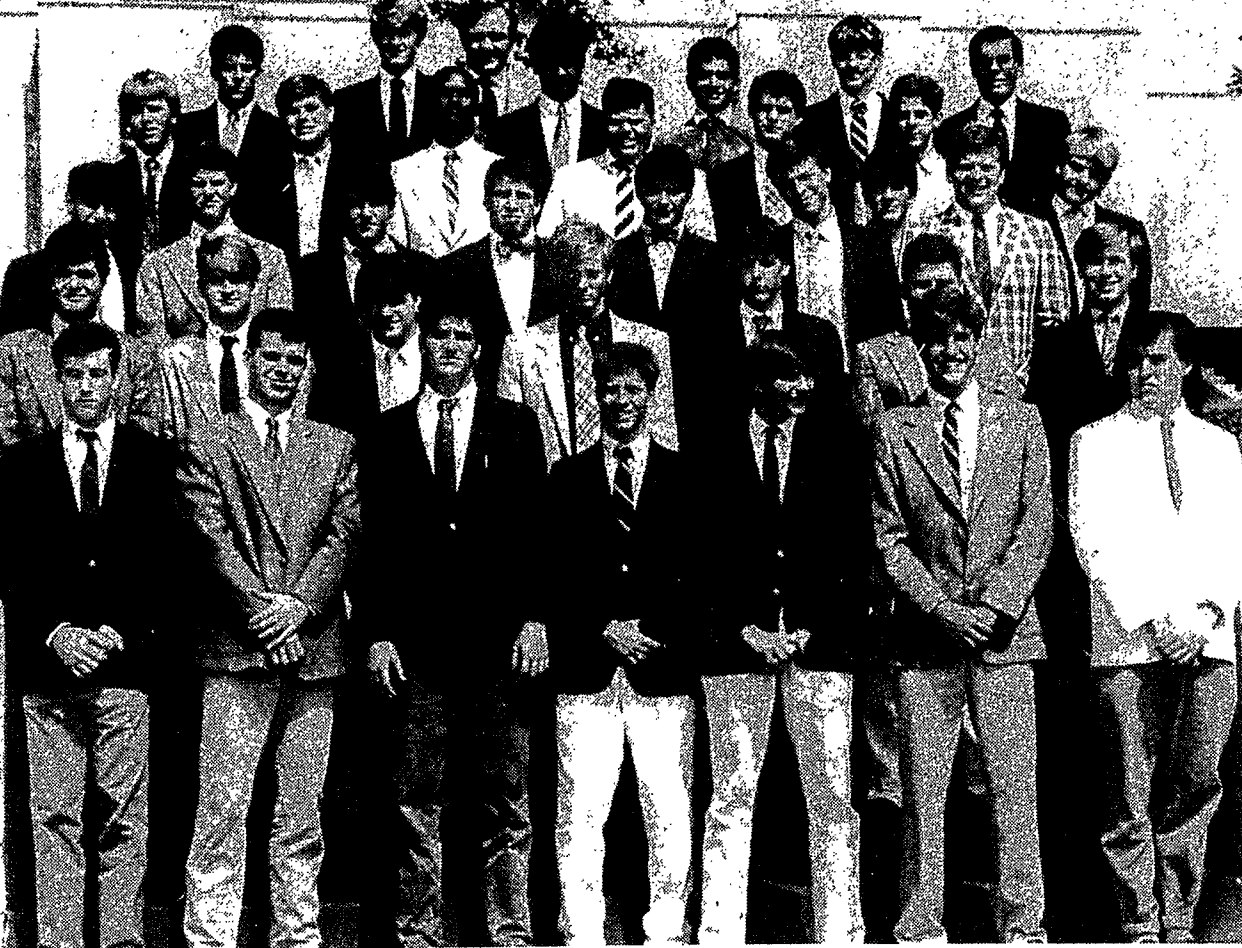

That procedure has been changed and now state funds are allocated based on the previous year's enrollment figures.

PRC has experienced a 20 percent increase over the last two years, which means the college should receive nearly $5.5 million in support from the state this next year.

Last year the state contributed $4.5 million to the PRC budget. Student fees are anticipated to increase, but from increased enrollment and not from a tuition increase.

Students will continue to pay only $275 per semester in tuition. County support is expected to increase by $75,000 to $950,000 and federal support should increase from $20,000 to 40,000.

Income from sales and services should remain about the same as last year, according to Holmes.

St. Stanislaus scholarship winners listed

Brother Paul Montero, principal of St. Stanislaus High School, and James Thriffley, guidance counselor, report some 44 seniors among 78 1988 graduates have earned academic scholarships to various universities.

The number of students earning academic scholarships represents 57 percent of the graduating class.

Ian Alcalen was awarded academic scholarships to Illinois Institute of Technology, Mississippi State University, University of Alabama, and a Naval ROTC Scholarship.

Frank Burdette received the Davenport and Spiza Scholarships to Millsaps College, as well as academic scholarships to Auburn University, University of South Alabama, and Mississippi State University.

Michael Vegas earned a dean's honor scholarship to Tulane University, a Naval ROTC Scholarship, as well as scholarships to Mississippi College and the University of Mississippi.

Albert Bolian received a presidential scholarship to the University of South Alabama and a leadership scholarship to Mississippi State University.

Joe Lee earned an honors scholarship to William Carey College.

Ya-Sin Shabazz was awarded the Knight-Ridder Scholarship and academic scholarships to Yale University, Loyola University, Tulane University, Morehouse College, Fisk University and Vassar College.

Joseph Overall received the Emily de Montluzin French Scholarship as well as academic scholarships to Tulane and Loyola Universities.

Chad Lavoie was awarded academic scholarships to Louisiana State University and the University of Mississippi. Ron Engel earned academic scholarships to Tulane University, University of Mississippi, Mississippi State University and Millsaps College.

Juan Camero received a Naval ROTC Scholarship to Tulane University and an academic scholarship to the University of South Alabama.

Johnathan Thames earned a dean's merit leadership scholarship to Loyola University, as well as academic scholarships to Tulane University, Sewanee University, Rhodes College and the University of Dallas.

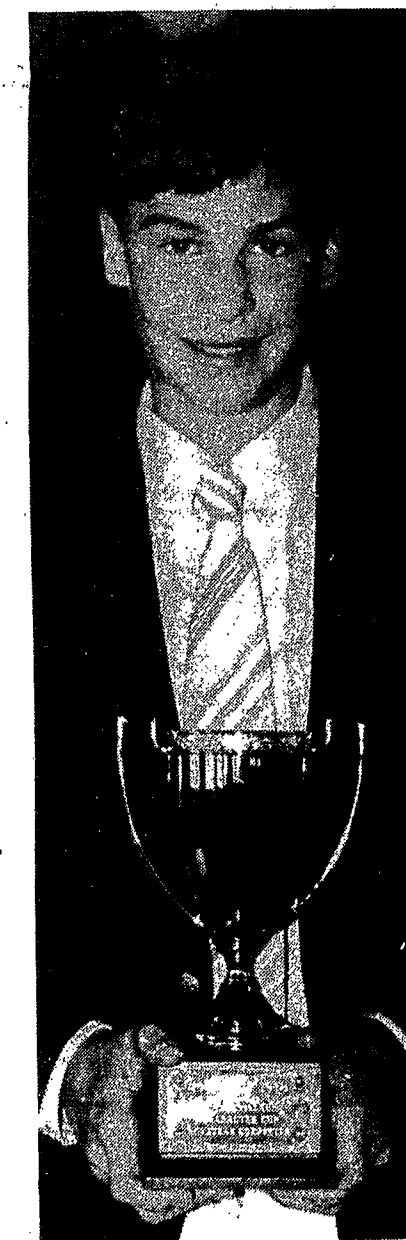

David Bast was awarded the Samuel Bell scholarship to Davidson College, and academic scholarships to the University of Mississippi, Mississippi State University, the University of Southern Mississippi, Delta State University and Mississippi College.

Alex Biro received music scholarships to Nicholls State University and Pearl River Community College; and Bill Stevenson received a music scholarship to Pearl River Community College. Scott Pfaff was awarded the Polymer Science Scholarship to the University of Southern Mississippi.

Jean Larroux earned an academic scholarship to the University of Mississippi. Michael Switzer was awarded the Clyde and Mary Hall Scholarship and the Leech-Chevron Scholarship to Millsaps College.

Key McKinnis received an academic scholarship to Louisiana State University; and Bruce Barker was awarded a National Merit Finalist Scholarship to the University of Florida.

The 25 seniors who merited academic scholarships to Pearl River Community College as a result of high scores in the American College Testing Program include Shawn Acker, Mario Alessi, Greg Blanchard, Michael Casano, Stephen Cuevas, Joe Gex, John Gross, Alex Helwig, Kevin Ladner, John Leyser, William Mehrhoff, Wayne Oullie, Sandy Sarpy, Chris Schmidt, Joe Sellers, Felix Sternfels, Scott Tartavouille, Cliff Wilkin, David Bradley, Jerry Fackrell, Rocky Rhodes, David Scheyd, Cayman Sinclair, Will Falcon and Brent McDonald.

TEEN TALK

Driving at Age 16 Could Save Lives

Dr. Ann F. Jarratt Youth Development Specialist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

"Are they really changing the driver's license age to sixteen? If so, why?"

As of this moment, I have not read that the Mississippi Legislature has changed the age for getting a driver's license.

Several states have raised the age for driving. I think the statistics will tell you why. The Insurance Institute of Highway Safety states that by delaying licensure for teens until 17 or 18 years of age, it is estimated that there could be as much as a 60 percent reduction in the crash rate among 16 to 18 year olds. The same Institute reports that in some communities where local ordinances require teens to be 17 or 18 before getting a driver's license, they show reduced alcohol-related crash rates in this age group by 30 to 50 percent over other parts of the same state. If the law should be changed to raise the age for driving, it would certainly be based on the need to save the lives of young people who are slaughtering themselves on the highways in record numbers.

Episcopal Elementary students participate in field day

Fourth Graders Buddy Dauterive and Ray Schmitt run in the three-legged race.

Jennifer Debenport pours water into the bottle on Buddy Dauterive's head to win the fourth grade class competition.

Students of Coast Episcopal Elementary School in Bay St. Louis competed on an individual basis and everyone won ribbons at a recent field day. Mrs. Toney Doney, health and physical education teacher, said goal for the day was participation by every student.

Parents were encouraged to attend and were asked to volunteer as officials for the events.

Students participated in softball throw, sack race, three-legged race, obstacle course, long jump and other activities.

In conjunction with field day, the school library sponsored a book fair.

Coast Episcopal Elementary School third grader Kenny Spansel participates in the long jump.

ETV Brief

CONSTITUTION

Every day, in communities across America, the U.S. Constitution provides the framework for the most important decisions of ordinary citizens.

The constitutional implications of the way Americans go about their everyday lives are examined when ETV presents an encore broadcast of "We the People." This four-part special series, which premieres at 10 p.m., Friday, July 8, on Mississippi ETV, examines the impact of our national charter on American life today.

Hosted by Peter Jennings, the series takes a current affairs/news documentary approach to constitutional issues that affect our daily lives and, by focusing on contemporary problems, underscores the fact that the Constitution is not a historical fossil, but rather an enduring framework that guides the most important decisions of our lives.

First graders, Max Kennerly and Steven Spansel run the obstacle race.

Small business tax workshops slated in Gulfport

Two free tax workshops for self-employed people and small business owners will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on July 12 and 14 at the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce, U.S. Hwy. 90 in Gulfport, the Internal Revenue Service says.

These workshops are offered as a public service through the Internal Revenue Service's Taxpayer Education Program and are cosponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi Small Business Development Center and the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce to alert new and established business owners of their Federal tax responsibilities.

On July 12, the instructor will cover such topics as types of business organizations, record-keeping and accounting practices, income and deductions on the Schedule C, self-employment tax, and estimated tax. Practical exercises will teach small business owners how to determine taxable income and how to complete required tax forms.

The workshop on July 14, will cover employment taxes. Practical exercises will include Forms 940 and 941.

Participants will also learn about the advantages and disadvantages of sole proprietorships, partnerships and corporations. Each workshop session will include a question and answer segment.

No advance registration is required. Participants may attend either session or both.

Genesis head named presenter

Walter N. Todd, president of Genesis System, Inc. in Bay St. Louis, was selected to make a presentation at the annual convention of the National Institute of Marine Engineers and Architects, held recently in Toronto, Canada.

Todd spoke to the group, composed of marine engineers and architects from across the country, about the Genesis System and how it is now being used by vessel operators to manage propulsion efficiency, hull efficiency, captain performance and vessel utilization.

The Genesis System has become the leading company in the field of information management for the marine transportation industry by providing shore-side and on board management with detailed information on what it is costing to run the vessel. This information allows management and the captain to become involved in making decisions on how to operate their vessels more efficiently, increase productivity and profits.
